SLATER'S

LONDON PATENT

Steam Kitchen and Hot Air Roaster,

For cooking by Steam and Hot Air.

FROM $55 TO $200 AND UPWARDS.

ADAPTED for private families, hotels, boarding houses, steam boats, and other vessels; warranted superior to any other apparatus for all kinds of cooking, in the most clean and delicate manner; and will cook for from five to five hundred persons; uniting economy, health and cleanliness; its various operations of steaming, boiling, roasting, baking, stewing and broiling, and supplying constantly from one to fourteen gallons of clean boiling water, and with or without a hot closet, are all performed by the use of one small fire, and is always well understood by once or twice using, nor is it so liable to be out of repair; is entirely free from excessive heat, of course most particularly adapted for cooking in hot climates; or with additional pipes to conduct the steam or hot air, might be contrived to warm rooms in the coldest winter. The apparatus stands in a very small compass, say two feet four inches breadth, by one foot two inches depth, and from that to three feet by two feet, according to size, and is generally fixed in the recess on either side the kitchen fire place, and half the fire that any other on the most economical plan consumes, is quite sufficient. Victuals dressed on this plan, may be cooked a second time, and be as good as at the first; or when ready for dishing, can be made to wait an hour, without being spoiled; and the saving is calculated to be at least one pound of meat in ten, both in boiling by steam and roasting by hot air; and many families in England, who have for years had it in use, calculate that it will clear its first cost, in from six to twelve or eighteen months, according to the number in family, it being supposed there are at least two thousand families who have it now in use; the sales by the agent in Liverpool for the last year solely being upwards of eight thousand dollars, and not an instance known, where one has been taken on trial, ever to have been returned on the agent's hands.

The apparatus is now in general use in England, East and West Indies and Canada; in various steam boats at Pittsburg and on the lakes; on board the steam boat Superior, captain Milnor, running between Philadelphia and Wilmington; also two on board the steam boat Virginia and Norfolk, at Baltimore; as also in many private families in Philadelphia and neighbourhood (who acknowledge its superiority over every thing they have before seen) and to whom references will be given to inspect the operation.

Very few of the above still remain on hand, though regular supplies will in future be kept, and orders taken for any particular sizes wanted; as also for steam boilers, and apparatus for warming rooms, churches, and other public buildings, washing, brewing, heating baths, &c. &c.

THE Saving Fund Society.

Office No. 22, South Sixth Street—open daily.

Times for Deposits Mondays and Thursdays,

From 4 to 7 P. M.

This institution was established in December 1816, for the purpose of affording a secure and profitable mode of investing the small sums which may be saved by the industrious and frugal mechanic, labourer, and all other persons. The sums deposited bear interest from the time they are placed in, and may be recalled at any time. The money is always invested in stock for the use of the depositors, and this stock is held by the president and cashier of the bank of the United States, as trustees.

All sums exceeding one dollar are received, and as soon as these sums amount to five dollars they bear interest, and at the end of every year, the interest is, without any trouble to the depositor, added to the principal, and becomes a new capital, bearing interest. By those who superintend the business of the institution, no emolument or advantage is received.

An apprentice, who will deposit in the Saving Fund Society one dollar per week, for five years, will at the end of that time have $293. A male domestic who shall deposit four dollars per month, for ten years, will at the end of that time have $612.—A female domestic who lays up from her wages two dollars per month, for ten years, and places her savings as they are made in this institution, will at the end of ten years have $305. A journeyman mechanic, who deposits five dollars per week, for five years, will have $1468. A master mechanic, who places in the saving fund eight dollars per week, for five years, will have secured for himself $2340. And the father of a family, who, in order to make provision for each child, will deposit fifty cents a week from the time of their birth, for each child, will secure to every one of his children a portion amounting to $1716, on their attaining the age of twenty-one years.

The interests, the happiness of the community, cannot be better promoted than by encouraging among all for whom the Saving Fund Society was established, an employment of the means to attain the benefit it assures. Pastors of congregations, preceptors of schools, heads of families, master mechanics, guardians of children, and officers of economical and charitable societies, are earnestly solicited to assist in the accomplishment of its objects.

THOMAS W. LEVERING,

Bell and Brass founder, and House Bell Hanger,

No. 40, south Fifth Street, below Walnut,

BEGS leave, without too much brass, to chime in with the public practice of advertising his talent and versatile merits, and to offer upon equitable terms, his services to every class of his fellow citizens throughout this enviable union! When it is remembered how extensively useful and necessary are services in his line, it will not be matter of wonder that he should incur expense, and take some trouble to make their value known.

Without entering into an elaborate history of the origin and usefulness of Bells, he will merely advert to their utility in churches, from national rejoicings to national lamentations—from the modest peal of the assiduous lover to the "lost child restored"—from the tintinnabulary clatter of a dun, to the delightful tones of a dinner bell—from the decorations of a cheerful hearth, down to the jingle of a Conestoga team, he is able and willing to supply them. And as "Love laughs at Locksmiths," he has enlisted himself as an auxiliary in Cupid's corps of rifle-men, and has contributed materially to many a conquest, after Mars had done his utmost, and feels less remorse for his victories than any Hero of the world—Washington excepted.

Neither is he selfish—his labours are not confined to any sect or party, nor by geographical bounds:—he works for all—though FRIENDS are frequently inimical to his works, he is quite as willing to dispose of his brass as they are.

☞ Casting of every kind done—Brass work for Coach and Harness Makers furnished.

CLOTHING.

THE Subscriber finding that the pressure of the times demands an attention to economy, and that the days of luxury and high prices have been replaced by outstanding debts and vexation in collection—he proposes to accommodate his mode of business to the new state of things, and to reduce the prices of better times to such a standard as shall not render it necessary to his friends and customers to open an account, or defer payment to a future day. He will, as usual, execute all work committed to his care with promptness and neatness; and by reducing the price hitherto given, to one much lower, he presumes that he may also have a right to expect prompt payment; and this is the principle that he means to pursue; finding that the expences of account keeping, collecting, and interest, have, for some years, made a greater deduction from the former high prices—the rule not to keep any account book for debts, and to have no collector but himself, will enable him to avoid debt, and serve his friends with much greater satisfaction, than when he was obliged to trouble them on the first of every six months for three or four years, with a bill, seldom reduced and frequently augmented.

☞ Low prices and prompt payment will be his future rule of business.

If deferred for ten years, the same person would receive 42 per cent. per annum during the remainder of his life, upon any sum he might choose to invest. Deferred Annuities may also be purchased by the payment of annual sums during the term for which the annum is deferred. As for instance, a person aged 18 may purchase an annuity of 100 dollars a year, to commence

At the age of 60, by paying $2 98 per annum,

At the age of 55, by paying 5 23

At the age of 50, by paying 8 84

Universal Grammar.

IT is well known, that in all printed grammars, of all languages, all the rules, that are calculated to explain the construction of sentences, are, without one exception, founded on what is called real, or imaginary, viz. true, or false, or fictitious syntax.

All rules founded in falsehood or fiction, are a perpetual, an insurmountable obstacle to the progress of a pupil. They are insurmountable, because the true construction of sentences in any language, never was, and never can be understood, by fictitious rules. The preceding, support the following positions, viz.

The best scholars, of all known languages, from time immemorial, having acquired their knowledge of grammar, in a great measure, from fictitious rules, have never, but in a limited degree, understood the grammatical construction of their own, or any other language—even though they may have studied, or been teachers of various languages from seven to seventy-seven years.

To support the above positions, many authorities may be cited.

1st. From the preface of Dr. S. Johnson's dictionary—"Some words there are, which I cannot explain, because I do not understand them." In the same preface, he states, "That a whole life cannot be spent upon syntax and etymology, and that even a whole life would not be sufficient," &c.

2d. From the last page of the introduction to L. Murray's grammar—"There are few of the divisions, arrangements, definitions or rules, against which, critical ingenuity cannot devise plausible objections." Even the above sentence, from the pen of Mr. Murray, is constructed on fictitious syntax; and all the rules in printed grammars, are incompetent to designate the nominative to the verb are, in italics, and to describe the construction of the same sentence

3d. From the very attempts—of all writers of new grammars—to elucidate the construction, and develop the mysteries of the language, on which they respectively write.

The subscriber's system affords correct definitions, rules, &c. NEVER BEFORE DISCOVERED, which obviate all the difficulties, which the fictitious definitions, rules, &c. can never remove or explain.

A pupil, acquiring the knowledge of English grammar by this system, can, afterwards in less than one day, learn all the grammatical terms, that are used in printed English grammars.

A host of opponents, from humble apparel to priestly robes, decry the subscriber's system—not one of them understands it—and opposition, from one who does not understand it, deserves no credit. Not one of them, by the rules in printed grammars, can parse any five sentences, which are found in succession, in any book in the English, Latin, or Greek language, and at the same time, explain the natural subdivisions, beauties, and niceties, which belong, classically, to the same sentences, because the rules in printed grammars do not reach them, and are, therefore, as silent on these subdivisions, &c. as they are on the subject of astronomy.

The period of a few weeks or months, according to the capacity of a pupil, devoted to the study of grammar by this system, is worth "A whole life" devoted to falsehood and fiction.

PAXTON'S

Philadelphia Directory

AND

THE SUBSCRIBER,

Being editor and publisher of the Philadelphia Annual Directory and Register, has by an arrangement for the use of the public, established an

to give information to the citizens generally; where he keeps a Directory for the purpose of registering all removals; changes of residence; omissions which may have happened in this directory; and of such persons who may arrive in the city during the current year.—By which means he expects to be enabled frequently to communicate information that may be of importance to the public. But it must be remembered, that the utility of this will entirely depend on the public, as all information must be sent to this Office, which will be then registered, and information will be given to all inquiries.

It is also proposed to keep a register for all transient residents in this city. Every stranger, gentleman or lady, is invited to forward their name as soon as they arrive in this place—their residence, and the time (if they think proper) of their intended stay—their place of residence, when at home—from where last, or such additions as they may wish to add. Every person has the privilege of seeing this Register, which in all probability will frequently be a mean of introducing long absent friends or acquaintance, who would otherwise not know of their being so near each other.

No fee will be received for either registering the names, or communicating such information when registered.

N. B.—The public are informed that advertisements may be inserted in this Directory; and the subscriber begs leave to suggest to the conductors of manufactories, and those engaged in permanent occupations the utility of advertising in the supplementary sheets thereof. This book will necessarily be in the hands of every man of business in the city, and is generally the first consulted by people from abroad; of course, an advertisement attached to it, will be conveyed to more people than through any other medium, and be exposed longer to public view, as the Directory will be in constant use for one year at least.

EXPLANATION.

Look at the top for the century, then to the right for the intervening year; in a line with it under the century is the dominical letter for the year.

For bissextile, or leap years, use the letter on a line with the blank above that year, until the first of February.

Look for the month, and in a line with it under the given dominical letter, is the day of the week on which that month begins; then find the corresponding day at the top of the days of the week, and that column will be the days of the week for that month.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE Editor tenders his sincere thanks to those citizens who have patronised this Directory, and assures them every exertion has been made to render it the most complete ever published in this city. Its merits can be best ascertained by a comparison with former Directories.

The Directory commences with the “Annual Advertiser,”* which comprises a number of advertisements, most of which are headed by handsome emblematical cuts in wood. The arrangement of the names is very much improved, and the number greatly increased.† The reader is recommended to make himself acquainted with the “Directions to the Reader,” as soon as possible, as it will make every part clearly understood. A very complete list of streets and public places (made out originally by the editor) follows the names.

The “Philadelphia Register,” embraces a complete list of duties, together with considerable information very useful to merchants, masters of vessels and others—the Constitution of the United States—Members of Congress—Departments of Government—Ministers and Consuls—U. S. Navy—Post Office Establishment

* See the Editor's advertisement under this head.

† This Directory contains 22,032 names: the present New York Directory contains 19,677 names; but notwithstanding this difference in favour of Philadelphia, the New Yorkers have the assurance to contend that their city is the most populous in the union!

PREFACE.

—Government of Pennsylvania—Courts of the United States and Pennsylvania—a copious List of Public Institutions and Societies, alphabetically arranged; besides a great variety of other useful information, particularised in the “List of Contents.”

Notwithstanding all the attention paid this Herculean undertaking, some errors no doubt exist, for which the clemency of the public is solicited. Every well informed person must be sensibly impressed with the impossibility of bringing a work of this kind forward entirely free from inaccuracies.* The taking of the names was commenced about the first of September, 1817: it is hoped no person who has changed his residence since that date, whose name and profession is not properly inserted, will censure the editor, as communications appeared in all the papers, requesting such to send in their addresses for correction: the frequency of removals rendering it impossible for the editor, without such assistance, to make a correct return.

The Mammoth task of taking the names of all the heads of families and persons in business residing in the city and liberties of Philadelphia, requires a vast deal of perseverance and ingenuity to obtain the necessary information; as some persons entirely refuse

* Admitting that it were possible all the names were taken perfectly correct, before they could be printed and published, from the ordinary changes which daily take place in this GREAT CITY, at least fifty errors would appear among them. Anxious and willing to spare no expense or labour to arrive as near as possible to accuracy, it is requested that every person who may discover an error in this Directory, will send immediate information thereof, which shall be corrected, and inserted in the DIRECTORY REGISTER, which is open for public inspection, at the residence of the editor.

PREFACE.

to answer our queries; others must be waited upon at some suitable hour; some houses are closed; many surnames of different orthography sounding alike, and the information obtained respecting orthography, names and professions being often vague or incorrect, which it is impossible entirely to obviate; a large proportion cannot spell their names; some cannot speak English; a number are so much afraid of being found, that they give wrong names; many think us tax collectors or enrollers of militia, and on that account refuse to give their names, and tell us we must "find out by our learning;" much of the information to be had from servants only; besides an immense deal of difficulty and labour, of which the public have no conception; because if they had, we should suppose that many hundreds of respectable merchants, shopkeepers and others, who use the book a very great deal throughout the year, would leave off the practice of borrowing, and bestow upon us so trifling a sum as the price of a Directory.

The greatest exertions have been used in order to bring forward as correct a Directory as is practicable, and we are confident the compensation is not equivalent to the great labour. Many persons complain of the price ($1.50), but when they are informed that the New York Directory sells for $1.75, and contains 136 pages less, it is expected we will hear no more complaints on that subject. Those who find fault with the price of the book, would be well cured of their complaints, if they had to serve but one week's apprenticeship with us in the Directory business; it is beyond all doubt the cheapest book published in the United States, for the information it gives. Some few think we are not paid enough; those we most heartily thank, and esteem—let the rest borrow or beg, as usual. We are sorry we cannot, after the manner of some public printers in this city, boast of our immense and overflowing patronage, &c. for certainly a good Directory is equally deserving of extensive public support; and we may add that it is almost indispensable, in this large and flourishing city. If no Directory was published for two years, there would be no calculating the great value of the time that would necessarily be spent in searching out the residence of individuals.

If the editor is properly encouraged by the citizens, he will repeat the publication of the Directory annually; and as, by experience, it is now reduced to a certainty, Philadelphia cannot support a competition in this business, he thinks it by no means unreasonable, very respectfully to solicit his fellow citizens for their future undivided patronage, so long as he executes the work to their satisfaction, which he will endeavour to merit by his attention to their service. He is induced to make this seemingly unreasonable request, as a divided support would probably oblige him to relinquish his intention to repeat the publication.

 For names not found in the body of the work, see list of “Corrections and Removals.”

The reader when searching for names, without knowing how properly to spell them, is requested to examine in every possible way they would admit of being spelled from their pronunciation. There are alternate references throughout the list of inhabitants, to those names having similar pronunciation, but not being spelled alike; viz. Allison, see Ellison—and vice versa.

Each page of the list of inhabitants, is headed in capitals, with the three first letters of the bottom name.

The reader will please to observe the following general rule for finding the numbers on houses, in the different streets in this city:—In those streets that run east and west, say High street, the numbers begin from the Delaware, the odd being on the north side. In those that run north and south, say Fourth street, the numbers begin from High street, running north and south, the odd being on the east side

The CONSTITUTION framed for the United States of America, by a Convention of Deputies from the States of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, at a Session begun May 25, and ended September 17, 1787.

WE, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I.

SECTION I.

All legislative powers herein granted, shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

SECTION II.

I. The House of Representatives shall consist of members chosen every second year, by the people of the several states; and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

II. No person shall be a Representative, who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States; and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.

III. Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states, which may be included within this union, according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other persons. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States; and within every subsequent term of years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand; but each state shall have at least one representative; and, until such enumeration shall be made, the state of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three; Massachusetts eight; Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one; Connecticut five; New York six; New Jersey four; Pennsylvania eight; Delaware one; Maryland six; Virginia ten; North Carolina five; South Carolina five; and Georgia three.

IV. When vacancies happen in the representation from any state, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

V. The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other officers; and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

SECTION III.

I. The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote.

II. Immediately after they shall be assembled, in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be, into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year; of the second class, at the expiration of the fourth year; and of the third class, at the expiration of the sixth year: so that one third may be chosen every second year. And if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

III. No person shall be a Senator, who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the U. States; and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state for which he shall be chosen.

IV. The Vice-President of the United States shall be President of the Senate ; but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided.

V. The Senate shall choose their other officers, and also a President pro-tempore, in the absence of the vice President, or when he shall exercise the office of the President of the United States.

VI. The Senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, they shall be on oath or affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside : and no person shall be convicted, without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

VII. Judgment, in cases of impeachment, shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honour, trust or profit, under the United States. But the party convicted shall, nevertheless, be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment according to law.

SECTION IV.

I. The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each state by the Legislature thereof : but the Congress may, at any time, by law, make or alter such regulations, except as to the place of choosing Senators.

II. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year ; and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

SECTION V.

I. Each House shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members ; and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business : but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorised to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner, and under such penalties as each House may provide.

II. Each House may determine the rules of its proceedings ; punish its members for disorderly behaviour ; and with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

III. Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings : and, from time to time, publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy ; and the yeas and nays, of the members of either House, on any question, shall, at the desire of one fifth of those present, be entered on the Journal.

IV. Neither House, during the session of Congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

SECTION VI.

I. The Senators and Representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall, in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest, during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to, and returning from the same ; for any speech or debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other place.

II. No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office, under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which shall have been increased, during such time: and no person holding any office under the United States, shall be a member of either House, during his continuance in office.

SECTION VII.

I. All bills for raising a revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives: but the Senate shall propose or concur with amendments as on other bills.

II. Every bill, which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a law, be presented to the President of the United States. If he approve, he shall sign it: but if not, he shall return it, with his objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration two-thirds of that House shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered: and, if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a law. But, in all such cases, the votes of both Houses shall be determined by yeas and nays: and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress, by their adjournment, prevent its return; in which case it shall not be a law.

III. Every order, resolution or vote, to which the concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and, before the same shall take effect, be approved by him: or, being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of both Houses, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

SECTION VIII.

The Congress shall have power—

I. To lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts, and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States: but all duties, imposts, and excises, shall be uniform throughout the United States.

ARTICLE II.

SECTION I.

I. The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the Vice President, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

II. IV. The Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

V. No person, except a natural born citizen or a citizen of the United States, at the time of the adoption of this constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President. Neither shall any person be eligible to that office, who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

VI. In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President; and the Congress may, by law, provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what officer shall then act as President: and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

VII. The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished, during the period for which he shall have been elected: and he shall not receive, within that period, any other emolument from the United States, or any of them.

VIII. Before he enters on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

SECTION II.

I. The President shall be commander in chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states, when called into the actual service of the United States. He may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officers in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices: and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons or offences against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

II. He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur: and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law. But the Congress may, by law, vest the appointment of such inferior officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

III. The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session.

SECTION III.

He shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the union: and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. He may on extraordinary occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them; and, in case of disagreement between them, with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper. He shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed; and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

SECTION IV.

The President, Vice-President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office, on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.

SECTION I.

The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may, from time to time, ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behaviour: and shall at stated times, receive for their services, a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

SECTION II.

I. The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made under their authority; to all cases, affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party, to controversies between two or more states, between a state or citizens of another state, between citizens of different states, between citizens of the same state claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens, or subjects.

II. In all cases, affecting ambassadors, other public ministers, and consuls, and those in which a state shall be a party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations, as the Congress shall make.

III. The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places, as the Congress may by law have directed.

SECTION II.

I. Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason, unless on the tes-imony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

II. The Congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason; but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture, except during the life of the person attainted.

ARTICLE IV.

SECTION I.

Full faith and credit shall be given, in each state, to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the Congress may, by penal laws, prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

SECTION II.

I. The citizens of each state shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states.

II. A person charged in any state with treason, felony or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found in another state, shall, on demand of the executive authority of the state from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the state having jurisdiction of the crime.

III. No person, held to service or labour in one state under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labour; but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labour may be due.

SECTION III.

I. New states may be admitted by the Congress into this union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state, nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states—without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned as well as of the Congress.

II. The Congress shall have power to dispose of, and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States, or of any particular state.

SECTION IV.

The United States shall guarantee to every state in this union, a republican form of government; and shall protect each of them against invasion, and on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened) against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.

The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments; which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the Congress: Provided that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight, shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article: and that no state, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate.

ARTICLE VI.

I. All debts contracted, and engagements entered into, before the adoption of this constitution, shall be as valid against the United States, under this constitution, as under the confederation.

II. This constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every state, shall be bound thereby, any thing in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound, by oath or affirmation, to support this constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

The ratification of the convention of nine states shall be sufficient for the establishment of this constitution between the states so ratifying the same.

Done in the convention by the unanimous consent of the states present, the seventeenth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and of the Independence of the United States of America the twelfth. In witness whereof we have subscribed our names.

AMENDMENTS.

The following Articles in addition to, and amendment of, the Constitution of the United states, having been ratified by the legislatures of nine states, are equally obligatory with the Constitution itself.

I. CONGRESS shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

II. A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

III. No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

IV. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the person or things to be seized.

V. No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war, or public danger: nor shall any person be subject, for the same offence, to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case, to be witness against himself; nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

VI. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury, of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed: which district shall have been previously ascertained by law; and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favour; and to have the assistance of counsel for his defence.

VII. In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

VIII. Excessive bail shall not be required; nor excessive fines imposed; nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

IX. The enumeration, in the constitution, of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

X. The powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.

XI. The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another state, or by citizens or subjects of any foreign state.

XII. The electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice-President; and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President, and of the number of votes for each, which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of government of the United States, directed to the president of the Senate; the president of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted: the person having the greatest number of votes for President shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President.

The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President, shall be Vice-President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the Senate shall choose the Vice-president: a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice.

But no person constitutionally eligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

XIII. If any citizen of the United States shall accept, claim, receive, or retain any title of nobility or honour, or shall, without the consent of congress, accept and retain any present, pension, office or emolument of any kind whatever, from any emperor, king, prince, or foreign power, such person shall cease to be a citizen of the United States, and shall be incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under them or either of them.

[NOTE.—The 11th article of the amendments to the constitution, was proposed at the second session of the third congress: the 12th article, at the first session of the eighth congress: and the 13th article at the second session of the eleventh congress.]

UNITED STATES' POST OFFICE ESTABLISHMENT.

The Post Office Establishment is under the direction of a Post Master General, whose office is called the General Post Office, and is kept at the seat of government.

Congress, by special act, establishes such post roads as appear to them expedient. At this time there is a main post road which extends 1733 miles from Robbinstown, on the north-eastern extremity of the sea-coast of the United States, to St. Mary's on the south-eastern extremity; and another main post road, which leads from the seat of government to New Orleans, being a distance of 1233 miles, and branches or cross roads, which keep up a communication between the capital of the United States, and the capitals of the individual states, and also with every city or village of any note. The aggregate of the extent of the several post roads is about 51,600 miles.

The mail is carried by contracts made with the Post Master General, who has divided the whole into nearly 400 routes or contracts, and has stipulated for its conveyance as often and with such expedition as he finds the public interest requires. It runs daily between the great and commercial towns; twice a week to the capitals of each state not commercial, and once a week to other places. The usual rate of travelling on the cross roads is 40 miles a day, and from 60 to 120 miles in 24 hours, between the great commercial towns.

Post Offices are established by the Post Master General, at such places as he considers expedient.

There are stages for the conveyance of the mail and passengers, from Belfast in Maine, to St. Mary's in Georgia, and on many of the cross roads.

The mail is transported in stages, each day in the year, 10,121 miles.

The mail is transported in sulkies and on horseback, each day in the year, 10,616 miles, making 20,737 miles per day.

If you divide the post roads of the United States into two distinct post routes, the mail will travel each week, in stages, nearly equal to three times around the globe; and divide all the post roads in the United States into four equal or distinct post routes, on which the mail is carried in stages, sulkies, and on horseback, it will be equal to a travel of six times, each week, around the globe, averaging one post office for every fifteen miles of post road.

The mail is transported by a direct or corresponding line of stages, from Anson, in the district of Maine, via Washington City, to Nashville, Tennessee, a distance of one thousand four hundred and forty eight miles, in a south-western direction. The mail is transported, by a direct line of stages, from St. Mary's, in Georgia, to Highgate, in Vermont, via Washington City, a distance of 1,369 miles, in a northern direction.

To Retailers of Wines, Gin, Whiskey, Rum, Brandy and other Spirits.

All persons engaged in retailing those liquors, by measure less than one pint, are advised to avoid breaches of the state law. No person can sell even in a licensed house, under another person's license, assigned to him. Every seller must have a license to himself and in his own name, from the court of Quarter Sessions for the county, and from the Mayor's court, for the city. Every person who has a license must avoid selling after his license shall expire, until he shall procure a new license. The fines run at $50 for the first offence, and $100 for every subsequent offence, with costs in each case. If the fine and costs be not paid, the defendant must be sentenced by the court, to confinement at hard labour two months for the first offence, and three months for every subsequent offence. The United State's license is of no avail to prevent fine, imprisonment and costs, for breaches of the state law. No person is likely to escape notice for breaches of the law, because the guardians of the poor, and the person informing, divide all fines between them.

Nov. 17, 1817.

To Aliens.

The Legislature of Pennsylvania having given to Aliens, a right to buy Farm Lands, Mill-seats, Grounds for Manufactories, dwellings, &c. with buildings, and to hold, lease, will or sell such property, on such aliens declaring in court, their intentions to become citizens, public notice is given of that privilege. The Court of Quarter Sessions will commence on the 1st of December, after which such declarations can be made, and naturalization may be completed on matured cases.

Pennsylvania and Lying-in Hospital.

The history of this eminent institution is too well known to need particular notice here. It may however be observed, that the plan was first suggested by Dr. Thomas Bond, and it was founded by individual philanthropy in 1752. In 1774 it lost, by the depreciation of continental money, about ten thousand pounds, nearly one half of its productive estate,—Subscriptions were however solicited, and by the united exertions of the managers successively employed, and the receipt of some legislative aid it has at length arrived at its present eminence.

Managers, Samuel Coates, Pattison Hartshorne, Lawrence Seckel, Zacheus Collins, Joseph Lownes, Thomas Stewardness, Edward Pennington, Thomas P. Cope, Reeve Lewis, Samuel W. Fisher, Joseph Watson, Joseph S. Morris.—Treasurer, Joseph S. Lewis.—Physicians, Thomas Parke, Samuel Calhoun, Joseph Parrish, Joseph Hartshorne, John S. Dorsey, John C. Otto.—Physician of the Lying-in Hospital, Department, Thomas C. James.—Physician to the Hospital out-patients, John W. More.

Applications for admission must be made first to one of the Physicians then to one of the sitting managers. The sitting Managers, and Physicians attend at the Hospital on the 4th and 7th day morning of every week, to receive and discharge patients. Recent fractures, and wounds, happening in and about the city, if brought immediately as they occur, will be admitted gratis, and without any security being demanded of the persons who brings the patient to the house.

N. B. Comfortable accommodations are provided for poor married women in the lying-in department, where they are attended free of expence.

Published by order of the Managers.

By the above table, it will be seen, that when a sale is effected at Philadelphia at 166 2-3 advance, it is equal to selling goods in N. York at 60 per cent sterling: or receiving 160 $\frac{1}{2}$ sterling at par, for every 100 $\frac{1}{2}$ (nett, without charge) the British invoice amounts to.

To bring sterling into dollars and cents at par, multiply the pounds by 40, and divide by 9; dollars and cents to sterling, multiply by 9 and divide by 40.

To find the interest of any particular sum for any certain time, multiply the sum by the number of the months; take one-half of the product, and you will find the two right hand figures to be cents—the remainder on the left hand are dollars, which is the answer.—If there are cents in the sum after you have multiplied as above, you will find the two right hand figures to be fractions, the two next cents, and the remainder in dollars

FROM THE NEW YORK ADVERTISER

I enclose you "a treatise, on drunkenness" printed in large type, soliciting the favour of you to give it an insertion. This vice is slaying many thousands in our country; its approaches are so insidious, that we frequently behold persons undermined, before they have dreamed of being attacked. A good man may be seen admonishing his friend for drinking too freely, yet at the same time, he hesitates not to join him in one glass of grog: for the dread of drunkenness, like the dread of death, is entertained for a neighbour, but not for one's self, until prostration beyond recovery, exhibits "the MAN IN RUINS."

Let every man therefore in the community, not even excepting the priest of the most high God, pause and ponder over every sentence of this treatise. Should it be perused by any who dare to venture on brandy and water before dinner especially if it be what is called stuff grog, let him reflect whether he unwittingly does not manifest a love too ardent for the beverage itself. Let him THINK—RESOLVE—and ACT as every good citizen, and sincere christian ought to act—let him quit it AT ONCE!

A SUBSCRIBER.

NATURAL CURIOSITY.

From the American Telegraph.

We have been favoured with the following description of Laurel Hill Cave which is much the most extensive cavern yet discovered in Pennsylvania, by Mr. John A. Paxton, of Philadelphia, a gentleman who is collecting materials for a new Gazetteer of the United States.

LAUREL HILL CAVE.

SIR.—I was detained from proceeding on my journey by the lameness of my horse, in Uniontown, Pennsylvania, the seat of justice of Fayette county, and having heard of a large cave in the neighbourhood, which had never been thoroughly explored, my curiosity was raised and I determined to penetrate it fully. I made my wish known, and immediately the following gentlemen of Uniontown, agreed to accompany me, namely, Wm. Gregg, John Owings, James M. Johnson, John Gallagher, and Ephraim Douglass. We entered into a determination not to turn back, whilst one of the party was willing to proceed in the examination. We provided ourselves with refreshments, candles, tinderbox, matches, lantern, compass, chalk, and a line to measure with; we set out on Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1816, ascended the Laurel Hill Mountain, and left our horses at the farm of Mr. Delany, on the top, within half a mile of the cave, and requested him if we did not come out early next morning to have the country apprized of our situation as we had heard that two young men, to wit, Crain and Merrifield, were lost in the cave for nearly two days, having burnt out all their candles; and when found by the farmers were lying in each other's arms, resigned, as they thought, to their premature and deplorable fate. After making all necessary preparations we started for the mouth of the cave; but before I enter into a detail of our discoveries I will point out its situation.

Laurel Hill Cave, which I have taken the liberty to name, it being in want of one, is situated in Pennsylvania, Fayette county, George township, on the top of Laurel Hill Mountain; nine miles south easterly of Uniontown, three miles easterly of Fairfield furnace, and half a mile northeasterly of Dalany's farm house. At 4 o'clock P. M. we commenced our operations; we first descended into a small pit, on the side of which we found the mouth, about 3 feet by 4, which we entered and immediately found ourselves in a passage about 20 feet wide, and descending about 50 degrees, for 40 feet in a N. W. course when we found a less declivity and a smoother floor; here we left our great coats and things we had no immediate use for and proceeded, in the same course, a short distance when we found that the passage forked into two avenues more contracted, both leading, by a considerable descent into the first room; this is about 24 feet diameter, with a roof of rock about 20 feet high—a large descending passage leads from this room, the same course with a very considerable roof, and is about 12 feet wide for some distance, when it becomes more contracted and leads into the second room, which is 50 feet by 100, with a large body of rocks on the floor that have fallen from the roof, which is not very high: at the end of the passage is a running spring of excellent water. In this room the person who had the tinderbox, unfortunately let it fall among the rocks, which opened it, and by this accident we lost nearly all our tinder. A very narrow, uneven and descending passage leads from the second room, in a northeast direction, to the Narrows, a passage two and a half feet high, and about fifty feet broad, leading, horizontally, between rocks with a small descent for about one hundred and fifty feet to a perpendicular descent over rocks; through this small passage we had, in many places to drag ourselves along on our bellies and the buttons of my coat were torn off by the rocks above; this passage evidently was formed by the foundation of the nether rock being washed by the veins of water beneath, which caused it to separate from the upper rock, and formed the route to the perpendicular descent; which we found to be twenty two feet; I descended by a rope, but my companions found their way down by clinging to the rocks, we now found ourselves in a very uneven, rocky passage which ascended about 20 degrees for 234 feet, but as we could not find an outlet from this after the most particular search, we returned and ascended the perpendicular precipice, and to the right of it discovered a passage which had a great descent, was very rocky, uneven and so contracted for about eighty feet, that it was with the greatest difficulty we made our way through it; this led to a second perpendicular descent, of thirty feet, over rocks which we with great difficulty got down: we now found ourselves in a large avenue or Little Mill Stream Hall (as called it) with a very high roof and about 25 feet wide: it had a sandy floor with a stream of water running through it sufficiently rapid and large to turn a grist mill: on the sides of this stream were some large rocks which had fallen from the roof:—this avenue is about 600 feet in length, with considerable descent to where the water looses itself through a small aperture in the rocks.

On returning from the bottom of the avenue we discovered a passage leading horizontally and at right angles from the right side of this avenue, the entrance of which is elevated about eight feet above the floor, we found this a very pleasant passage in comparison to the rest. The roof, the sides and floor, were quite smooth, and we could walk upright; it is 120 feet long and leads into the last and largest avenue, or Great Mill Stream Hall; this we found to be very spacious, being about 20 to 30 feet wide, from 30 to 80 feet from the floor to the roof, and 1200 feet in length, with a stream sufficient to turn a grist mill running its whole length: from the source of the stream where there is a considerable collection of white spar formed by the constant dripping of Water, the avenue has a descent of about 30 degrees to where the stream disembogues itself through a small aperture in the rocks: before we arrived at this aperture the avenue became so contracted that Mr. Gregg and myself had to creep on our hands and knees through the water for about 50 feet; here in the sand we found the name of "Crain" written, which we considered a mortifying discovery, as we thought we were the first persons who had penetrated so far in this direction: we wrote our names likewise in the sand, and then joined the rest of the party. In our search through this great avenue we had to climb over or creep under a thousand craggy rocks that lay scattered on the floor, and which had fallen from the sides and ceiling. I have every reason to believe that no person except us, ever visited the source of the stream and head of the avenue, as we found no sign of human invention within many hundred feet of the spot, and which was very common in every other part of the cave, as the sides of every place that had been previously visited were covered with names and marks made with coal; and if any person had penetrated this far, they would certainly have left some token of their perseverance. We now found ourselves at the end of our exploring expedition, and, as we had plenty of candles left, and had taken the precaution to mark with chalk an arrow on the rocks at every turn, we were confident of being able to retrace our steps to the entrance. Returning we measured with a line, the extreme distance we had been in, and found it to be 3600 feet, but we must have travelled altogether upwards of two miles. Our return we found much more tiresome, as it was an ascending route nearly the whole distance. We arrived in safety at the mouth, at 10 o'clock, after having travelled incessantly for six hours. We were about 1600 feet, perpendicularly, below the entrance. We heard the water running beneath the rocks in every part of the cave. The temperature we found agreeable, but owing to our great exertions, we were kept in a profuse perspiration during the whole time we were in. In different parts, we saw a few bats, but a gentleman of Uniontown, who had gone into the cave during the winter season, informed me that the roof of the two first rooms were covered with millions of bats, hanging in large bunches, in a torpid state and clinging to each other. This cave is composed of soft sand stone rocks and has every appearance of having been formed by the veins of water washing them and their foundations away, which caused them by their weight, to separate from the standing rocks above; there is not the smallest doubt in my mind, but this cave is considerably enlarged by the friction of the water, each year, for all the rocks on the floors of the different apartments would exactly fit the parts of the ceiling immediately above them. The rocks that now form this cave will certainly fall by degrees, as their foundations are washed away; therefore it is impossible to form an idea of the very great spaciousness that it may arrive to. The knowledge that the rocks above are subject to fall is calculated to create the most inexpressible horror in the minds of persons who visit this subterraneous wonder. The arches of all the avenues are formed by the rocks meeting in the middle of the roof with a crack extending in each the whole length.

Yours, with esteem,

JOHN A. PAXTON.
